Wildlife Wednesdays, Season 2

The need to protect our planet's flora and fauna from the predations of transnational organized crime and corruption has never been more apparent. There is increasing recognition of the dangers that wildlife, forest and crimes in the fisheries sector pose not only to the climate and the environment, but to the rule of law and stability.

UNODC's Global Programme for Combating Wildlife and Forest Crime invites you to join our team for Season 2 of Wildlife Wednesdays, a series of informal briefings sharing information relevant to the work of our Programme.

Join us to hear about what the Global Programme is doing, and participate in interactive discussions to share success stories, information and challenges, and engage in Q&A with our global team.

Please visit this link (or scan the QR code) to select the sessions you would like to join, and associated calendar invitations will be sent accordingly: Wildlife Wednesdays
