Dear Friends,

I'm very inspired to be among the presenters for the upcoming 2nd Annual Global Resilience Summit. Heart Mind Institute has created a free, six-day, online Summit to help all of us deepen and sustain our individual and collective resilience so that we can meet the immense challenges we face with wisdom, compassion and skillful means. Our individual and collective well-being is at great risk in these perilous times, and thus deepening and sustaining our resilience is paramount.

Join us to learn strategies for increasing and sustaining our own resilience and contributing to our communities' resilience from over 40 global thought leaders around the world. You will have the opportunity to do that and more during this transformational online Summit brought to you by Heart Mind Institute in partnership with the Engaged Mindfulness Institute.

The Covid-19 pandemic has exposed all of us to significant traumatic distress and placed us at risk for a host of stress and trauma-related health consequences in addition to the risk of contracting the Covid-19 disease itself. By proactively addressing these risks with the resilience boosting strategies we will learn during this Summit, we can all do our best to take care of ourselves, our families, our co-workers or employees and each other at this time.

In addition, resilience is a long-term issue for the future of humanity on this earth. In this Summit, we will explore strategies for increasing individual, relational, collective, cultural, social and systemic resilience. We will also explore the relationship between trauma and resilience, as well as the relationship between social, economic and racial justice, human rights and societal resilience. Finally, we will be guided in listening to and healing our relationship with the earth by indigenous leaders and environmentalists.

Join me and Heart Mind Institute for the Global Resilience Summit to explore this critical question of resilience with global thought leaders like Otto Scharmer, Rhonda Magee, Ken Wilber, Lara Boyd, Dan Siegel, Diane Musho Hamilton, Stephen Porges, Barbara Fredrickson, Rick Hanson, Thema Bryant, Tiokasin Ghosthorse, Andrea Pennington, Christopher Germer, and many more...
